1. As of September 1951, all craft on waterways connected with the West River were organized into two groups, military and civil, in order to ensure control of shipping and effective and speedy handling of ships for military use. The military group was placed under the West River Special Commissioner's Office, and the civil group was placed under the Kwangsi Bureau of River Transport.
2. Among the duties of the West River Special Commissioner's Office are:
  - a. Organization and direction of ferries on the West River and its tributaries.
  - b. Requisitioning of ships for military purposes.
  - c. Control of the movements of shipping, including registration at points of departure and arrival.
  - d. The maintenance of general order.
  - e. The organization of so-called Peace and Order Societies on vessels with a crew of more than 20, and the organization of so-called Foundation Political Groups aboard craft with a crew of less than 20.
3. The Kwangsi Bureau of River Transport, with headquarters at Wuchou (111-19, 23-28), is under the direct control of the Pearl River Transportation Bureau. YU Ch'i-tsu (俞殿祖), a native of Szechuan, is the chief of the Kwangsi Bureau. There are two departments in the Bureau; the License Department under HO Chi-hsuan (何其宣), and the Survey Department under YU I (游怡). The licensing department has a staff of 50, including laborers.
4. The following is a list of power-driven ships operating on the West River:<sup>1</sup>
